“Be bold, be adventurous and create an unforgettable experience was our brief,” says Wissam Yafawi. The result was a tablescape that celebrated the purity of lines, while subtracting the superfluous, using a monochromatic palette. Yafawi says his approach was all about drawing a line while connecting the dots—in this case, it was conversation lines between the guests grouped around the table, so they could get to know each other better. “We concentrated on the basics and went back to black.”
